SAYS COUNTRY HAS "HYSTERIA" OVER LABOR SITUATION

Secretary Wilson Says He is Not Alarmed Over the Labor Situation.

URGES LEGISLATION

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Discussing the unemployment problem before a joint meeting of Senate and House labor committees, Secretary of Labor Wilson said there was considerable "hysteria" in the country over the reconstruction, but that it would probably be worked out successfully. He said that although reports to the department showed 262,000 unemployed men at 123 industrial centers this week, compared with 235,000 last week, he did not consider the situation alarming.

The immediate enactment of legislation to provide "buffer" employment so as to prevent the "philosophy" of force from even getting a hold in this country in the reconstruction period is urged by the secretary.

POLLOCK IN REBUKE OF CRITICS OPPOSED TO NATIONS' LEAGUE

South Carolina Senator in Vigorous Defense of Wilson.

PRAISES W. H. TAFT

Charges "Destruction" By Lodge, Knox, Borah and Reed.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Critics of President Wilson and his proposal for a League of Nations were sharply rebuked in the senate today by Senator Pollock of South Carolina, democrat, who in his first prepared address charged that partisan politics was the basis for much of the criticism voiced recently in the senate.

Senators Lodge of Massachusetts, Knox of Pennsylvania, and Borah, of Idaho, republicans and Reed of Missouri, democrat, the South Carolina senator said were among those who had labored for "destruction instead of construction" in the peace plans.

"I warn the gentlemen in this body that this is no ordinary political question," said Mr. Pollock. "I warn the gentlemen that the American people will not look with favor upon any man who would play politics with the people's blood. The American people will hold them responsible if they place obstacles in the way of saving the world from a repetition of its anguish of the past four years."

Senator Pollock, who took his seat last month to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Tillman, said he spoke "merely as an ordinary man and a humble member—unknown largely beyond the limits" of South Carolina, but added that he was fresh from contact with the plain people of America who desire an agreement among nations to prevent future wars.

Senator Pollock said he had listened with impatience "to petty partisan criticisms of the treaty" by Senators "attempting to bring the president of the United States into the disfavor and contempt and ridicule of the world," and praised former President Taft for his support of President Wilson's efforts in behalf of a League of Nations.

"We will be recreant to our duty," the senator said, "and false to our people and traitors to the human race if we do not here and now highly resolve that we will lay aside all partisanship and all carping criticism, all fault-finding, unless we can suggest something better, and encourage our representatives at the peace council as to the best way to effectuate the hopes of mankind for the peace of the world."

"Today is the day; tomorrow may be too late. He who would postpone the consideration of a proper league of nations is hardly less an enemy to the human race than he who comes out boldly in full opposition and prates about the dignity of the United States and declares that he will not consent to arbitrate the Monroe doctrine and will not agree to send American boys to fight other people's battles thousands of miles away."

GREETINGS FROM SON TELL BATTERY HISTORY

Capt. and Mrs. Geo. Fruin Receive Interesting Book From Son.

Captain and Mrs. George Fruin have received from their son, Lloyd J. Fruin, a private in Battery D, Fifty First artillery, C. A. C., a copy of the "Greetings" printed and published by the battery and sent to relatives and friends, asking them to "rejoice with us in the dawn of victory." The "Greetings" contains a roster of the battery and a history, showing it to be one of the first artillery units of the A. E. F. to see overseas duty. The history is:

Entrained for Mailly, Aube, France, Sept. 17, passing through the following famous cities: Rouen, Paris and Troyes. Battery was in training at Mailly-le-Camp, Aube, France, from Sept. 18, 1917, until April 10, 1918, when it left for the front. Equipped with 270 mm. French Cote Mortars (10.6 inch) it bombarded the following enemy positions: St. Ejan, Pouvanelle Forest, (Battle of St. Mihiel) and Bois-du-Grande-Portion.

JUDGE FARRAND ONE OF OLDEST JUDGES

Dixon Jurist Would Be Benefitted by Proposed Pensioning Bill.

HE IS NOT TO RETIRE

Judge R. S. Farrand of this city is one of six judges in Illinois who will be benefitted by the passage of a bill introduced in the legislature by Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet to pension certain jurists.

The measure would provide that any judge of the supreme court of Illinois or any judge of any circuit superior, probate, city or municipal court in the state having attained the age of sixty-five years and having given at least twenty-four years of service as a judge might resign or retire from office on a salary equal to half that paid him at the time of his retirement.

The Dixon judge has served continuously for 37 years, 20 as county judge and 17 on the circuit bench, and as far as is known, there is but one judge in the state older than Judge Farrand. Justice Cartwright of Oregon is one of the six who would be benefitted.

Even if the bill becomes a law Judge Farrand has no intention of retiring as long as his health remains good, he said today.

JAPANESE ANGRY OVER OPPOSITION TO ISLAND GRAB

British and French Accept Wilson Theory on Captured Lands.

ALLIES STAND WAR COST

Correspondent Says Germany Will Not Be Made to Pay for War.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, Jan. 30.—The Paris correspondent of the Evening Standard says he has reasons for reporting that the peace conference has eliminated any intention to call upon Germany to pay the allied countries their costs in the war or to impose indemnity on enemy nations. "But the minds of the conferees," he adds, "are fixed that there shall be full and ample reparation for unjust damage done. A sharp distinction will be drawn between damage that resulted from legitimate warfare and damage that was wanton." The idea that Germany should return the indemnity which she took from France in 1871 has been abandoned.

Japanese Are Angry.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, Jan. 30.—Great Britain's reported acceptance of President Wilson's theory on internationalization as applied to captured enemy colonies, says the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Mail, involves the admission that the treaty with Japan with regard to the islands in the Northern Pacific and with the Arabs in Syria and the understanding with France as to the future status of Kamerun must be arbitrarily modified, if not turned up.

"The Japanese delegates are angry, and alarmed and declare their unalterable determination to claim the islands as promised," the correspondent says, "and these islands are really the crux of the whole situation."

"The Australians," the correspondent continues, "believe that President Wilson's firm stand is due to the fear of Japanese occupation of the islands would impair his prestige in the United States and that he fears to meet a hostile congress in March if he agreed to the absolute retention of the islands by Japan."

Would Learn Details.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Paris, Jan. 30.—The British and French governments have accepted the principles of President Wilson's plan concerning mandates for the administration of captured territory, it was stated by Capt. Andre Tardieu of the French peace conference delegation today. The acceptance, however, is subject to learning under what conditions the plan will be carried out.

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY TELLS OF HIS WOUNDS

Story Refutes Charges That "Y" Workers Did Not Get Near Fronts.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—More than 700 Y. M. C. A. workers saw service with the soldiers of the American Expeditionary Force in the front lines during the last months of the war.

Frank M. Van Epps, seriously wounded while serving as a Y. M. C. A. worker in the Argonne, told of some of his experiences when he returned to Chicago yesterday. They were not without many thrills. On the way to France last April on the Oronzio, Van Epps and 56 other "Y" men narrowly escaped drowning when the ship was torpedoed by a German U boat.

Van Epps, who was divisional secretary of the Y. M. C. A. outfit, worked with the Fifth division until the armistice was signed. He was dressed up in a doughboy's uniform when he arrived here. A limp and a kithbag slung over his shoulder containing what is left of his equipment complete his souvenirs of more than six months' service overseas.

On Four Fronts.
Van Epps saw the war on four fronts in France and Alsace, serving in the first line trenches on two of them. When the Oronzio was torpedoed on April 29 sixty miles off the coast of Wales, U boats "got" two out of a convoy of seven steamships. The Oronzio went down in twelve minutes after she was struck, and Van Epps and other "Y" men lost all their baggage. They were picked up by a torpedo boat destroyer and landed at Holly Head, Wales.

In Southern and Middle Alsace, Van Epps was in the first line trenches and at St. Mihiel, when the drive opened, he became a stretcher bearer after his supplies ran out. Getting word to shift to the Argonne, he travelled all night by train, on trucks and afoot, and spent the next three weeks sleeping in shell holes and trenches when he was not at work.

At Madeleine Farm, on Oct. 18, Van Epps and Thomas F. Hadley of Iowa, another Y. M. C. A. man, set up shop in an old barn. All but three of the twenty-five "Y" workers went back to get supplies. The barn had been under shell fire for several days, but Van Epps and Hadley decided it was good enough to sleep in. They built a bed of boxes of jam, with a tub of chewing tobacco for a pillow and lay down.

Bombed From the Air.
Half a mile back, an American battery was hammering the Germans, and two German airplanes came over looking for the position. They let go two bombs which landed on each side of the barn. Soon came a third which struck the roof, bringing down a mass of rafters and beams and scattering shrapnel. A splinter was driven through the calf of one of Hadley's legs and a piece of shell tore through both of Van Epps' thighs.

After dressing stations and field hospitals had finished with them they spent half a day in an ambulance and then were put aboard a French hospital train, where they remained another two days. One of these days was Sunday, so Van Epps, at the suggestion of some of the doughboys, "put on" a service, conducting it propped up in his stretcher.

Cut Uniform Off.
At the field hospital, Van Epps' "Y" uniform had to be cut off him, so he got an army uniform to come home in.

Van Epps said he observed the various welfare agencies at work all along the line and found most of them earnest and conscientious laborers. Regarding the lack of supplies and workers in the Y. M. C. A., he said:

"The Y. M. C. A. suffered severely because of lack of workers. In our section we had only one-third of the number required and often we Red Triangle men worked fourteen hours a day. It was always difficult to get supplies and more difficult to have them transported to the points where the men were, but as long as we were able to keep moving the Y. M. C. A. kept going along with the men. There were 700 "Y" workers to serve the 300,000 troops in the front lines."

Van Epps in his Red Triangle work had among his co-laborers L. P. Putnam, who is now in Y. M. C. A. work in Chicago, S. W. Dean who is still in France, Professor Allan Hoben of the University of Chicago, who recently returned, Ed. Klee of Waukegan, John Dobbins of Aurora and T. J. Killin of Pontiac, Illinois.

Van Epps was business manager of the Y. M. C. A. College in Chicago before going overseas to serve the "Y."

Paris, Jan. 29.—(By Havas).—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, according to the Echo de Paris, is endeavoring to bring about the return of former Emperor William after the meeting of the national assembly. Leading German manufacturers in Westphalia are said to be interested in the plan.

Anticipations are running high in regard to the Victory Ball on Friday evening at Rosbrook hall and there will be few in town who will not be there to extend a welcome to the returned sailors and soldiers. For a dancing party there is an unusually large line of attractions. There will be a miniature aeroplane in evidence, canteen lunches with doughnuts, coffee, cheese, etc., will be served, and victory caps will be on sale and every one not wearing one that evening will indeed be a conspicuous figure. The committee on decorations was busy all today at the hall and a very attractive hall is growing under their hands.

WAR MOTHERS' COUNCIL—

The War Mothers' Council held on Tuesday one of its very best meetings. The twenty-third psalm was repeated as the opening number, with Mrs. Wm. Lenox in the Chaplain's chair. The singing of America followed. Then came the business session—the reports of the secretary and treasurer for the month of January; authorization given the president to call on the treasurer for expense money; a report from the flag committee by the chairman, Mrs. Haueter, and the reading of letters from different ones who had received service flags upon the loss of soldier or sailor kin; and reports from the food sale in January, showing that it netted $39.65.

An intermission of ten minutes was allowed to give the members an opportunity to pay dues and it was found that nine new members and 62 old members, including officers, were present.

The president, Mrs. Tryon Rosbrook, named a board of three directors to assist the officers in the management of the Council. The members are: Mrs. Ward, Mrs. John McIntyre, and Mrs. Wm. Lenox.

A salute to the flag followed. It was announced at this time that the membership fee for this year would be $1.00, an increase of fifty cents over last year's. Instructions from headquarters said that councils just making a beginning and not having a thousand members, were not asked to charge the $1.25 fee, which is the customary one.

Mrs. Mabel Forsyth was admitted at this time to the Council as an honorary parliamentary member. Mrs. King, chaplain and former president, thanked the council for the gift presented to her upon relinquishing the office of president and also expressed her gratitude for the helpful way in which the members upheld her during the performance of the duties of that office.

The chicken pie dinner, to be given on February 15th in the Elks' club rooms, was the topic of a great deal of planning. With Mrs. H. W. Stevens as chairman, and Mrs. Egler, Mrs. Hardesty, Mrs. Mueller, Mrs. Weistead, and Mrs. Blackburn as the members of the committee to have charge of the affair, it promises to be a great success. They will receive donations from every one who has kin in the service, whether members of the council or not. At the dinner every soldier and sailor will be given his dinner free. Mrs. Benj. Snyder has been named to sell the tickets.

The French orphan girl, who has been adopted by the Council, wrote asking for an adoption name to which she might address her letters and the name of Mrs. Tryon Rosbrook, the president was given.

The members were greatly interested in the presentation of the first "War Mothers' baby," since the institution of the Council, the little two month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Rolph, who accompanied her mother to the meeting.

Mrs. Bates, who son Ernest is in France, displayed a handsome pillow top, sent by her son, which was inspected with pleasure by the members.

VISIT IN DEKALB—
Mr. and Mrs. George C. Morris, 429 Madison Ave., have gone to DeKalb to visit relatives for a few weeks.

WED IN CHICAGO—

The marriage of Miss Edna Ware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ware of 419 Galena avenue, and Henry Briscoe, also of this city, took place in Chicago yesterday. Miss Ware met Mr. Briscoe in Chicago on his return from Camp Mills, L. I., where he has been stationed for some time and where he had just received his discharge from the service. Miss Ware wore, for the ceremony, a blue chiffon broadcloth costume, her gown and cape coat of the same material. Hat and shoes in taupe completed the costume. Mr. and Mrs. Briscoe are expected to return to Dixon either this evening or tomorrow when further details of the ceremony may be learned. They will make their home in this city.

AFTERNOON TEA—

Mrs. Fred Dimick entertained a few friends with afternoon tea today.

BARBARA'S FIRST LOVE LETTER

CHAPTER IV.

Neil's letter commenced:
"Dear little friend Bab; I miss you more than I can tell you. I miss our walks together, our tennis, and the croquet—even if you did always beat me. New York seems awfully hot and stuffy after the cool, shaded streets of Huntington. I find myself wishing that I were sitting in the hammock with you instead of on a roof garden, these stifling nights. You know nothing of summer heat. Your cool, grass grown, shaded village has nothing in common with the sun-baked streets of this big town."

"Some day I am coming back for another visit. Will you be just as kind to me, or shall I find you have changed—perhaps (awful thought!) married to some of those good hearted youths I met? Please don't, Bab. I should hate to find you Mrs. Somebody, instead of Barbara Hill, one of the dearest playfellows a man ever had."

"Tell me all about yourself, Bab. I am going to send you some new books occasionally, something I am reading. Then we can talk about it in our letters. Would that please you?"

"Remember me to your father and mother. They were good to spare you to me so often. Really, as I look back, I seem to have rather monopolized you during my stay with Aunt Grace. By the way, she is awfully fond of you. Perhaps you do not know it, doubtless you do. But in view of the fact that she told me, and that she is a relative of mine, go and sit with her occasionally, won't you? I see that I haven't given you any real reason that you should, but do just the same."

"I am having some pictures taken for mother. She has banded me to death for months to have my face put on a card. Would you like one? Don't be afraid to say 'no.' It won't hurt—yes it will, too. I find that I really want you to have one."

"This is quite a long letter for a first one, isn't it, Bab? Do write me soon. I shall be looking for a letter every day now until I receive it."

"Very sincerely,
NEIL FORBES."

My first man letter. Yet no one could call it a love letter. I thought as I pressed it to my lips after reading it. How could he make fun about my getting married? That hurt. Just as if I would think of marrying one of the village boys, now—after meeting him.

I was delighted that he proposed sending me books he was reading. It would seem like being together to talk of them in our letters. But what delighted me most was that I was to have his picture. I had tried to get up my courage to ask for it before he left, but couldn't. Now I was glad I had not, it was so nice to have him offer it of himself.

Of course I would go and sit with his aunt. I had done so frequently since he left and we had spent the entire time talking of him. Mrs. Carter had told me all she knew of his boyhood, of his people. It wasn't much, as they had lived so far apart, and her brother's wife and she had not been so very congenial. But it was all wonderfully interesting to me.

I said to myself that I would wait just as long as Neil had before I answered his letter. Two whole weeks. But I couldn't! I figured that the longer I waited to reply to his letter, the longer it would be before I received another. So at the end of a week I sent my answer.

I spent many hours, and destroyed several sheets of paper before I was satisfied with what I had written. Even then I realized it was very inadequate as far as either expressing my feelings, or in interest. But it was the best I could do.

I had told him how I missed him, but tried not to let him see too plainly how much. I had thanked him in advance for the picture and the books. It was a very ordinary letter from one friend to another. I wanted awfully to sign it "with love," but I restrained the impulse and simply said: "Your friend, Bab."

Tomorrow—The Tone of Neil's Letters More Loving.

SURPRISED ON BIRTHDAY—

Claude Switzer, busily caring for some meat last evening, which he had butchered during the day, was entirely unprepared for the unexpected appearance of more than fifty of his friends and neighbors, who came to assist him in the celebration of his birthday. He responded, however, with alacrity to the invitation of a pleasant social evening and music and the merriment resultant from the playing of games soon sounded throughout the house. Piano, cornet, and drum music was furnished by different guests as part of the evening's entertainment and songs were also sung. A sumptuous scramble was a very enjoyable feature of the evening.

TWO SURPRISES—

Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Van Arman of Fargo, N. D., surprised relatives here yesterday by dropping in for a leisurely visit here and at Walnut, Ill., their former home. Mrs. Van Arman is a sister of Mrs. C. M. Forbes and Mrs. Bryan of Dixon and Mrs. John Cushman of Sterling.

In the early evening Mr. and Mrs. Van Arman, who had stopped at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Prescott, with a company of other relatives, went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Forbes and completely surprised them. Mr. and Mrs. Forbes had not been informed of the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Van Arman. The guests went armed with well filled baskets and a sumptuous repast was served in honor of the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Forbes, its celebration belated, it is true, by illness in the family previously, but none the less delightful.

Singing Wires.

The singing of telegraph wires is sometimes regarded as a weather prognostic, though opinions differ as to the kind of weather it foretells. There has been much discussion as to the cause of this sound. Probably it is simply the aeolian harp effect, and its occurrence depends chiefly upon the direction of the wind in relation to the direction in which the wires run. Variations in the pitch of the sound depend upon changes in the tension of the wires with varying temperature.

THE RHINE AS A BARRIER.

Marshal Foch continues to maintain that there will be no safety for France nor for the world unless the Rhine is made a permanent barrier against the Germans. The policy he advocates is that which Julius Caesar actually put into effect 2,000 years ago. "It is not likely that Foch would go to the Caesarian extreme of driving all the individual Germans beyond the Rhine. That would be a difficult matter now. But he would leave west of the river no German authority, no German fortifications, no power to aid Germany in any future attempt to invade France or Belgium.

To Foch, a practical soldier concerned only with problems of military safety, it is a simple matter. To the statesmen busy with delicate questions of diplomacy and principles which they seek to apply with uniformity and justice, it is more complex.

Foch does not definitely ask for the annexation of the German Rhineland, but seems to suggest it. By such annexation France would gain a territory about equal to the part of France over-run by the Germans in this war. It might seem an act of stern justice to take it, for the wrongs suffered by France, and also as a very small example of the policy which Germany herself was boastfully proclaiming.

But such action would be contrary to the principles on which the allies have pledged themselves to make peace. It could hardly be reconciled with the "self-determination of peoples," because the Germans concerned do not want to live in France. It might be interpreted as an act of conquest. Germany would certainly so interpret it, and make much trouble about it.

Whether the Rhine should be made a strategic barrier, as Marshal Foch suggests, is a question for the military experts. If the Rhineland is taken from Germany, in the pursuance of any such plan, manifestly the thing to do is not for any of the allies to grab it, but to "internationalize" it, making it a buffer state under the authority of the League of Nations.

The Real "Butterfly."

The name for the butterfly did not originate from "Butter," but from low

He is and always has been a nuisance to the Dutch wives and has always been called the "butterfly," or but-

MAY DELAY 5TH LOAN UNTIL AFTER EASTER

RATE OF INTEREST UNSETTLED —BANKERS URGE AS HIGH AS FIVE PER CENT.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Because the Lenten season this year does not end until April 20 the treasury is considering postponing the opening of the next Liberty Loan campaign from April 6, as tentatively planned, to April 21. A decision has not been reached.

No attempt has been made as yet by Secretary Glass or his advisers to settle on the interest rate or other terms of the loan, it was stated officially yesterday. Whatever the terms may be they will accord with the principle of maintaining the market price of preceding issues the officials declared.

This is one factor tending to induce the treasury to keep the interest rate on the fifth loan as low as possible, since it is felt a rate as high as five per cent would work out as a depreciating influence on preceding issues.

Bankers are urging the treasury to make the interest rate on the next loan 4% or 5 per cent., but officials are inclined to keep it lower if possible. They rely strongly on the patriotic impulses of small bond buyers to "bring the boys home" and "finish the job." These phrases probably will be adopted as campaign slogans.

J. P. MORGAN HONORED

London, Jan. 29.—In recognition of his services to the allies, J. P. Morgan today was granted "the honorary freedom and livery" of the Goldsmith company. MEDICINES USED BY MONKS.
It is claimed that Monks of ancient days knew of more than three hundred species of medicinal plants used in general for medicines by these religious orders. While centuries have passed, with all the advance made in medical science, many of our most successful remedies are today made from the roots and herbs of the field, like that good, old-fashioned remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for more than forty years has been relieving women from some of the worst forms of female ills, and is now considered the standard remedy.

POLAND RECOGNIZED BY U. S. GOVERNMENT

President Directs Congratulations to Premier Paderewski.

OFFICIAL ACT SOON

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—Recognition of the provisional government of Poland has been accorded by the American government, officials of the state department said today in making public a message which Secretary Lansing at Paris has sent by direction of President Wilson to Ignace Jan Paderewski, the new Polish premier.

Mr. Lansing congratulated Mr. Paderewski upon becoming head of the Polish government and said the United States would be glad to enter into relations with the new Polish state as soon as possible.

Message from Wilson.
"The president of the United States," the message says, "directs me to extend to you as foreign minister and secretary of foreign affairs of the provisional Polish government its sincere wishes for your success in the high office which you have assumed, and his earnest hope that the government of which you are a part will bring prosperity to the republic of Poland.

"It is my privilege to extend to you at this time my personal greetings and officially to assure you that it will be a source of gratification to enter into official relations with you at the earliest opportunity to render to your country such aid as is possible at this time as it enters upon a new cycle of independent life, which will be in due accord with that spirit of friendliness which has in the past animated the American people in their relations with your countrymen."

Poles Send Thanks.
The National Polish department of America tonight sent a message of thanks to President Wilson and issued a statement saying that his "recognition of the Polish government under the premiership of Paderewski, is an act fully consonant with the high ideals with which America entered the war and with the ideals which have accentuated the president from the beginning."

SOLDIERS' LETTERS

Written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry DeMey, of Woosung, by Private Oscar DeMey, in France:
Nov. 23, 1918.

Dear Dad and Folks:—Just a few lines to tell you I am well and hope you all are the same. I addressed a letter to Florence yesterday. I suppose she got it, did she? I have a little more time to write now than I used to, so will try and write a little more. The censors are not as strict as they were so I can write a little more interesting news than in my other letters.

I don't know exactly where I am now, but must be somewhere in the heart of France. About a week ago our regiment marched through Verdun. I camped there one night. And say, dad, you ought to see the ruins of that once beautiful city. There isn't a building in the whole place that hasn't been struck by one shell or more. We were also in the Argonne and, say, there was some battle. One thing I hated, after Fritz got to running there he went so blamed fast that it nearly killed us to keep up. I would like to tell you how it feels to be under shell fire but will wait until I get back home, when we will have a lot to talk about.

I suppose you are all through picking corn by this time. In one of the letters from home I read that Ponce had gone to Chicago to buy some cattle. Did he get them? Cattle and hogs must be a good price these days. How are your hogs this year, dad?

Well, I hope it won't be long now until I can be back there and enjoying life same as usual on the old farm. By the letters I have received from home I understand that all the crops were excellent this year. That's good news to hear for you surely do deserve good crops.

Well, dad, there isn't much more to say now, so hoping this finds you all well and hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, as ever,

Your son,
Private Oscar DeMey,
Co. B, 318 Engineers, A. E. F.

Full Explanation.
Arnold could not bear to have anything that smacked of femininity applied to himself or his tiny baby brother. One day Arnold was keeping his eye on the baby carriage while the mother stepped into the apartment. A woman passing looked into the carriage and seeing the infant said: "Isn't she a sweet child?" Arnold, indignant, replied: "He ain't no she; it's a him."

Wife—"Richard, are we going to the Blank's dance or not? If we are, it's time for me to dress. If not, I must put a mustard plaster on my chest and go straight to bed."

HIS LOVE STORY

CHAPTER XVI.—Tremont has doubts about Julia's Red Cross mission.

CHAPTER XVII.—After long search Julia gets trace of Sabron's whereabouts.

CHAPTER XVIII.—Julia for the moment turns matchmaker in behalf of Tremont.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Two Lovely Women.

There was music at the Villa des Bougainvillies. Miss Redmond sang: "Good-night, God Keep You Safe," but other things. Ever since her talk with Hammet about she had been, if not gay, in good spirits, more like her old self, and the Marquise d'Esclagnac began to think that the image of Charles de Sabron had not been cut too deeply upon her mind. The Marquise, from the lounge in the shadow of the room, enjoyed the picture (Sabron) would not have added it to his collection of her niece at the piano and the Duc de Tremont by her side. The Comtesse de la Maine sat in a little shadow of her own, musing and enjoying the picture of the Duc de Tremont and Miss Redmond very indifferently. She did not sing; she had no parlor accomplishments. She was poor, a widow, and had a child. She was not a brilliant match.

From where he stood, Tremont could see the Comtesse de la Maine in her little shadow, the oriental decorations a background to her slight Parisian figure, and a little out of the shadow, the bright aigret in her hair danced, shaking its sparkles of fire. She looked infinitely sad and infinitely appealing. One bare arm was along the back of her lounge. She leaned her head upon her hand.

After a few moments the Duc de Tremont quietly left the piano and sat down beside the Comtesse de la Maine, who, in order to make a place for him, moved out of the shadow.

Julia, one after another, played songs she loved, keeping her fingers resolutely from the notes that wanted to run into a single song, the music, the song that linked her to the man whose life had become a mystery. She glanced at the Duc de Tremont and the Comtesse de la Maine. She glanced at her aunt, patting Mimi, who, freshly washed, adorned by pale blue ribbon, looked disdainful and princely, and with passion and feeling she began to sing the song that seemed to reach beyond the tawdry room of the villa in Algiers, and to go into the desert, trying in sweet intensity to speak and to comfort, and as she sat so singing to one man, Sabron would have adored adding that picture to his collection.

The servant came up to the Marquise and gave her a message. The lady rose, beckoned Tremont to follow her, and went out on the veranda, followed by Mimi. Julia stopped playing and went over to the Comtesse de la Maine.

"Where have my aunt and Monsieur de Tremont gone, Madame?"

"To see someone who has come to suggest a camel excursion, I believe."

"He chooses a curious hour."

"Everything is curious in the East, Mademoiselle," returned the Comtesse. "I feel as though my own life were turned upside down."

"We are not far enough in the East for that," smiled Julia Redmond. She regarded the Comtesse with her frank girlish scrutiny. There was in it a fine truthfulness and utter disregard of all the barriers that long epochs of etiquette put between souls.

Julia Redmond knew nothing of French society and of the deference due to the arts of the old world. She knew, perhaps, very little of anything. She was young and unschooled. She knew, as some women know, how to feel, and how to be, and how to love. She was as honest as her ancestors, among whose traditions is the story that one of them could never tell a lie.

Julia Redmond sat beside the Comtesse de la Maine, whose elegance she admired enormously, and taking one of the lady's hands, with a frank liking she asked in her rich young voice: "Why do you tolerate me, Madame?"

"Ma chere enfant," exclaimed the Comtesse. "Why, you are adorable."

"It is terribly good of you to say so," murmured Julia Redmond. "It shows how generous you are."

"But you attribute qualities to me I do not deserve, Mademoiselle."

"You deserve them and much more, Madame. I loved you the first day I saw you; no one could help loving you."

Julia Redmond was irresistible. The Comtesse de la Maine had remarked her caprices, her moods, her sadness. She had seen that the good spirits were false and, as keen women do, she had attributed it to a love affair with the Duc de Tremont. The girl's frankness was contagious. The Comtesse de la Maine murmured:

"I think the same of you, ma chere, vous etes charmante."

Julia Redmond shook her head. She did not want compliments. The evas-ment must be informed at once. Why hasn't he gone there?"

"He has explained," said Tremont, "that the only way Sabron can be saved is that he shall be found by outsiders. One hint to his captors would end his life."

"Oh!" said the Marquise d'Esclagnac. "I don't know what to do, Bob! What part can we take in this?"

Tremont pulled his mustache. Mimi had circled round the beggar, sniffing at his slippers and robe. The man made no objection to the little creature, to the fluffy ball surrounded by a huge bow, and Mimi sat peacefully down in the moonlight, at the beggar's feet.

"Mimi seems to like him," said the Marquise d'Esclagnac helplessly, "she is very particular."

"She finds that he has a serious and convincing manner," said Tremont.

Now the man, who had been a silent listener to the conversation, said in fairly comprehensible English to the Marquise d'Esclagnac:

"If the beautiful grandmother could have seen the Capitaine de Sabron on the night before the battle—"

"Grandmother, indeed!" exclaimed the Marquise indignantly. "Come, Mimi! Robert, finish with this creature and get what satisfaction you can from him. I believe him to be an impostor; at any rate, he does not expect me to mount a camel or to lead a caravan to the rescue."

Tremont put Mimi in her arms; she folded her lorgnon and sailed majestically away, like a highly decorated pinace with silk sails, and Tremont, in the moonlight, continued to talk with the sincere and convincing Hammet about.

Ouch! My Back!

When lumbago shoots its racking pains through your back remember this:

If you had kept your bowels open and free from food-waste lumbago would not have fastened on you so easily—you probably would not have had it at all!

If you let food-waste lie in the bowels, it creates poisons which seep into the blood and put an extra tax on the kidneys, lungs and skin pores to get rid of them. If they fail, lumbago, rheumatism, even kidney trouble may result.

Your druggist has a product called SALINOS, which will completely empty the bowels, including the lower bowel where most poisons are formed. It is pleasant to take, pleasant in action and does not gripe. Get a package for a Quarter (larger sizes Fifty-cents and a Dollar).

Keep clean inside and avoid these serious troubles. Get it today. Take it tomorrow morning.

ILLINOIS RANKS FIRST IN VALUE OF ITS CROPS

For Second Consecutive Year This State Sets Pace for the Union.

Washington, Jan. 30.—High prices and increased production swelled the total value of the farm crops of the country in 1918 half a billion dollars more than the total of any previous year. The aggregate value of farm crops for the year has been placed at $14,000,769,000 by the bureau of crop estimates of the Department of Agriculture. The previous record value year was 1917. The value of last year's crop was double the average value for the five years, 1912 to 1916.

Illinois ranked first in the value of all crops as did that state in 1917. Iowa, Texas and Georgia were second, third and fourth, holding the same rank they did in 1917. Minnesota took fifth rank, jumping from ninth place which she held in 1917. Ohio dropped back into sixth place from the fifth rank. North Carolina moved up into seventh rank from the eleventh place. Indiana retained her eighth place. Missouri dropped into ninth rank from the sixth place she held the previous year. Pennsylvania moved into tenth place from the fourteenth position. Nebraska, which held seventh place in 1917, dropped back to the seventeenth rank. California dropped from tenth rank to twenty-first.

The thirteen principal farm crops—corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, flaxseed, rice, potatoes, sweet potatoes, tame hay, tobacco and lint cotton—which formed at least 80 per cent of the value of all of the country's crops in 1909 as reported by the Census Bureau, were valued in 1918 at $11,125,996,000.

The total value of all crops as given is the hypothetical value, based upon the ratio of the 13 principal crops to all crops in the 1909 Census Bureau's report.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS

FROM FRANKLYN MORGAN: Tours, France, Dec. 14, 1918.

Dear Mother and all:

Will try to write a few lines today, as I haven't written for so long that I am ashamed of myself for being so negligent, but things have been happening so rapidly lately that I have not had the heart to write to anyone.

Mr. Streubing wrote me of Ethel's death, and the day after I received a letter from Betty telling me of the death of Fred Earl and it was just a little more than I was capable of handling at that time. Then, two days later I was transferred to this place after spending ten months at Gievres, where I had made a lot of friends and was hoping that I would stay there until we were all sent back to the States together, so it is no wonder I am in a bad temper and have not written to anyone.

I was sent here on the third of this month, December, and I don't like it any better now than I did the day that I arrived, and I won't like it until I am sent from here, as they are sending men from here to Mehun, which is the concentration camp for the men who are being sent home from France, and I am hoping every day that I will be called to be sent there.

While I was in a barber shop yesterday waiting for a haircut, a fellow walked in and tapped me on the arm and said, "Well for ——— Hello Morgan," and when I looked around I saw none other than Orville Egler, son of Will Egler of Dixon, whom I had not heard of since I enlisted in the army. We were both glad to see each other as he says I am the first one from home he has seen, and believe me, we sure talked about old times, especially Swaggle's barber shop, and tell Dad that Egler sends his best regards to Swag and so do I.

That is the second one from home that I have had the luck to meet in Tours, as I had previously met Howard Byers from home also. Those are the only ones from home that I have met ever since I have been in the army, which was a year ago the 8th of this month.

I understand that on or near the first of the new year a lot of the oldest fellows in the service of the A. E. F. will be on their way or will know about when they will be back home, and if this is true, why, I expect that lot to include myself, as I have been in the A. E. F., S. O. S. for nearly ten months now, so I don't see why I shouldn't be sent home with one of the first bunches to leave.

I am working in the office of the Motor Equipment section of the Ordnance and all that I do is to sit at this infernal typewriter all day and yound out stuff or the blueprint filling, and I am getting mighty tired of it, and I feel now, for the first time since the war is over, that I want to get home, and the more I think of it the more homesick I get, but then it won't be a very joyous home coming for me at the best, as the one thing that I was working for over here has gone now, and she couldn't even write me her last goodbye, as I know and feel that she wanted to do.

I am very anxious learn how Uncle Walter is now and also poor Wilbur Bates. How are they? Recovering Or have they gone also?

I wrote to Lester at the address that you sent to me but as yet have been unable to get an answer from him. Don't know whether he has left there or my letter got lost in transit, but I hope to hear from him soon. I guess that Duffy never had the chance to get a taste of army life, as I see in the papers that all of the men on their way to training camps and also those who were already in the camps are being released from the service as fast as possible and I say that they are pretty lucky lads.

Have had a couple of letters from Fred since he landed in France, but have no answers to letters which I wrote to him, but I suppose they are laying in the mail box at the other camp as I have received no mail since I've been here, which is over a week.

Well, I must stop writing for the present and write me soon and often and give everyone my best regards and a hug and a kiss for my little niece Jane and tell her that Bobo will be home from France pretty soon.

Tell Dad that I said thanks for fixing the car. With regards for the Cooks, I am

Your loving son,
G. FRANKLYN MORGAN.

THE ECONOMY

BAKING POWDER

CALUMET

Calumet possesses the farthest-reaching baking powder economy. It is the most economical leavening agent. It saves in more ways—and makes more important savings than most other baking powders.

You save when you buy it. The price is moderate—it leaves you money over the cost of high-priced brands for purchase of other articles. Costs but little more than cheap powders—far more valuable in quality.

You save when you use it. Possesses twice the ordinary raising force—you use only half as much as is ordinarily required.

You save materials it is used with. Calumet never fails with any kind of recipe or with any kind of flour—always produces perfectly raised, delicious bakings.

You'll notice a great difference when you use Calumet. Calumet produces light, sweet, wholesome, flaky bakings. You will notice with some of the cheaper brands the bakings are soggy, heavy, dark in color, and sometimes have a bitter taste.

Used by leading chefs and domestic scientists, and by more housewives than any other brand. Made in the world's largest and finest baking powder plant.

Best by test. A trial proves it.

John Deere Tractor Plows

Keep Doing Good Work

Ability to do good work is the first essential of a tractor plow. Profit on your investment in both tractor and plow depends upon the quality of the work that the plow does.

Ability to stand up under the strains of work behind a tractor and keep on doing the kind of work that pays profits is another bit essential. You need a plow you can depend upon for good work long after its newness is worn off.

John Deere Tractor Plows have an established reputation for ability to keep on doing good work.

Their genuine John Deere bottoms scour, pulverize and wear to best advantage.

They are unusually steady running. Because the axles are rigidly fastened to the beams, the plows are controlled by the wheels at all times. The land wheel is set back, balancing the weight of the plow over all the wheels and insuring even depth of plowing in uneven ground. The bottoms get down to position quickly and stay in the ground while plowing.

John Deere Tractor Plows are exceptionally strong in every part. Highest grade material is used. Large bolts and lock washers hold all parts rigidly in place. Beams are guaranteed not to bend or break.

The power lift is the simplest and most dependable ever designed. No chains or sprockets. Powerful clutch engages positively, raising the bottom high and level.

Quick Detachable Shares save time and labor without sacrifice strength or close fit. Loosen one nut to take a share off. Tighten the same nut and the share is on tight.

The No. 5 plow is made in two and three-bottom sizes, with 10, 12 or 14-inch bottoms, for use with the smaller types of tractors; the No. 6 carries either three or four 10, 12 or 14-inch bottoms, and is used with the larger light tractors.

The widely adjustable hitch adapts these plows for use with any standard tractor.

Farmers everywhere are making sure of continued good plow service behind their tractors by getting John Deere Tractor Plows.

You can't afford to get less than that kind of service behind your tractor. Don't fail to investigate John Deere Tractor Plows. Your John Deere dealer can show them to you. Drop a postal card to us, asking for a folder on these plows.

DIXON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

(By Robert Shaw.)

Well, here we are again. Oh, girls! I have lots to tell you this time, so find a chair.

Edward (Biscuits) Mahon is contemplating on running, for the Dixonian, a four-legged shoe-shining stand in opposition to Wilhelm's "Man Friday" (Dusty Keenan) who your boy and girl four years of high you know it, the proprietors of these two places of business are so jealous they cast a glance at each other every time they meet.

Gave Talk.

Superintendent Smith gave a "spirit" talk to the students Tuesday noon on athletics and the attendance of the basketball games. The Athletic association is $5.50 in the hole and they hope to get out of debt with the coming game with Mendota at the H. S. Gym Friday evening.

Wild Ride.

The Misses Ruth Worthington, Helen Eaton, Seville Crawford, Mary Louise Fuller, and Marion Cahill surprised the natives on the North Shore last Saturday afternoon when they rode to town from the Colony in a large cattle wagon. The girls "mooed" all the way in. They had been out choosing their prospective rooms at the Colony.

The following is a clipping from the Chicago Tribune and might be of interest to parents: (Pupils must not read.)

"If you can possibly afford it, give your boy and girl four years of high school training. The financial advantages of a higher education are tremendous. United States statistics, comparing the wages of thousands of men of 25, show the wages of the boy who left school at 18, after he had finished his high school education, were more than double those of the boy who left school at 14, after he had finished the grades. Statistics from high school placement bureaus in the city show that firms pay larger salaries to boys who have finished the four year courses than to those who have completed the two year courses and that the demand for the graduates from the four year courses is much greater than the demand for two-year students. Army life has shown more clearly than ever before the enormous advantages to the man with the higher education over his less trained and educated companions. In all walks of life, in all business, in all professions, a high school education is a paying investment."

New Semester.

The second semester started Monday and all students returned with grim expressions on their faces, resolved to buckle down and face their tasks without a quiver.
